

Be a part of National Drug Facts Week

January 27–February 2, 2014

Did you know that the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) for Teens Web site has many science-based activities and resources to help engage teens on the facts about drug abuse? From printable online fact sheets to interactive videos, the NIDA for Teens materials are designed with teens in mind.

Use these interesting and effective tools to help shatter the myths about drug abuse:

- Drug Fact Sheets: These sheets offer a quick guide to different drug facts in a question-and-answer format.
- Hands-on Prevention Activities: These interactive tools include online quizzes, printable classroom activities, videos, and games.
- More Resources: Other resources on NIDA for Teens include videos from NIDA's Director, Dr. Nora Volkow, and podcasts about teen drug abuse.

These FREE materials can be used as information to help plan your event or even as breakout activities during your event.

Here's how one 2013 participant engaged teens during its National Drug Facts Week event:

"For National Drug Facts Week, we organized a Drug Facts Jeopardy Game that allowed us to educate our kids and families on the harms and dangers of using illegal substances, without coming across as preachy or lecturing. The activity also allowed the kids and parents to get competitive and flaunt their knowledge."

— LaTonya Harris
Reclaiming Futures, Lucas County Juvenile Court
Toledo, Ohio

How will you use these activities in your National Drug Facts Week event?

Spread the Word!

Let your followers know about National Drug Facts Week by using the tweet below.

 Tweet This

Drug Fact Activities and Lessons

www.drugfactsweek.drugabuse.gov

The National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) is part of the National Institutes of Health (NIH), the principal biomedical and behavioral research agency of the United States Government. NIH is a component of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.